

METHODOLOGY

RECEIPTS OF CONSTRUCTION ENTERPRISES BY TYPES OF CONSTRUCTION

1. Purpose, nature and use

The purpose of the annual survey is to provide information about the revenues from construction activities including construction of residential, non-residential building and civil engineering. Statistical data are collected for construction work performed for: construction of new and making improvements and ongoing maintenance of residential and nonresidential buildings, carrying out civil engineering, including new construction and improvements to building facilities and structures.

2. Scope and sources of information

Object of the survey is construction enterprises in the country that are operating during the reporting year.

The main source of information is a form "Information on the receipts of construction enterprises by type of construction, including the reported income from construction activity only. Information on receipts of construction enterprises by type of construction is derived from the accounting records of the enterprises.

3. Main statistical indicators

The main statistical indicators of the annual survey are as follows:

- Receipts from construction activity - cost of receipts from construction and installation works;
- New construction - building a new facility, whether the location of which will be built before it was occupied or not;
- Improvements - extensions, renewals or inside the structure, exterior improvements to buildings and major alterations;
- Current repairs and maintenance - painting, replacement of worn shingles or other roof elements;
- Building construction - construction of residential and nonresidential buildings;
- Civil construction - new construction and improvements of civil engineering facilities associated with construction of transport infrastructure, pipelines, power lines, telecommunication lines and others.

4. Frequency

The statistical survey on the receipts from construction enterprises by type of construction is annual

5. Classifications used and nomenclatures

- Classification of Economic Activities (NACE.BG-2008)
- Classification of types of Construction (CC)

6. Publicity and transparency

Access to the methodology - the methodology of the survey on the receipts of construction enterprises by type of construction and its results are made public.

Statistical publications - the data are published in annual editions of "NSI Statistical Yearbook" and Statistical Reference Book

Internet - data tables from the survey are published annually.